Britain Reported Ready to Let Pound Drop Along With Dollar

WASHINGTON—The next big development in international exchange looks like a falling off of the pound sterling.

The Treasury is in receipt of confidential information indicating that the British are getting ready to pull the plug on the pound and let it slide. Of course, it won't be done at a fell swoop. That would be disastrous. But the Treasury's advice is that the British have definitely decided to cut loose from the French franc, to which the pound has been tied for some months now.

The reason given for this change in British fiscal policy is President Roosevelt's inflationary program. Word from London has it that Chancellor Chamberlain is no longer seeing eye to eye with Montagu Norman, deflation-minded Governor of the Bank of England, on the desirability of keeping the pound pegged at a high level.

For a long time Chamberlain was convinced that Roosevelt intended stabilizing the dollar, that France and England co-operating in international exchange could force the U. S. to do so. Events in the final weeks of the World Economic Conference, however, disillusioned the British Treasury head.

While dismissals and slashed pay scales are the rule in the rest of the federal services, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, under Chairman "Seaboard Bill" Stevenson, seems to be an exception. . . . A few weeks ago A. E. Hutchinson, former $3,600-a-year congressional secretary of Stevenson, now secretary to the Board, had his salary jumped from $6,000 to $8,500. . . . James O. Mann, 21-year-old Alexander City, Alabama, stenographer, was shown to have jumped in a period of several months from a $1,600-a-year clerkship to $5,000 a year as assistant to Hutchinson. . . . An interesting sidelight on Jimmy's meteoric rise is that he is a protégé of Alabama's Representative McDuffie, author of the Economy Act under which hundreds of government employees lost their jobs and the rest had their pay reduced.

BETTING odds among oil men crowding Washington are that the mighty Standard Oil Company of New Jersey soon will have a new President. It looks as if John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is going to do to President Walter C. Teagle what he did four years ago to Robert W. Stewart, who was ousted from Standard Oil of Indiana.

Teagle's row with the NRA and Jimmy Moffett, his vice-president, originated before November 8, when Teagle wanted to put little yellow slips in the pay checks of Standard Oil employees warning them to vote for Herbert Hoover. Moffett, a Democrat—in fact the only Democrat on the board of Standard Oil—opposed this, finally won his fight.

Later General Johnson appointed Teagle on the advisory board of the NRA. The appointment came through Barney Baruch, a friend of Teagle's, but it did not meet with the approval of F. D. R. The President knew Teagle was a stand-pat Republican, a brother-in-law of Ambassador Walter E. Edge, New Jersey G. O. P. boss, senator, and Hoover intimate. He knew also that Teagle was one of those who before election had

Systems Vary in Many Cities; Muny Plants at East Palestine and St. Mary's Seem to Be Losing

BY HENRY C. HAGLOCH.

St. Mary's, Auglaize-co, maintains municipal light and water plants but a privately owned power company also operates in the town which has a population of 5,395.

Water charges are a minimum of $2.25 to $16 per quarter, according to size of meter, on a rate of $2.25 per 1000 cubic feet.

Light rates are 7 cents first 300 kwh, next 200 at 6, next 300 at 5, next 200 at 4, all over 1,000 at 2 1-2 cents. The minimum charge is 50 cents. There is a meter rental of 20 cents a month for small meters and 25 cents for large ones. Stove and small power rate is 4 cents.

Larger power rates start at 4 cents for the first 300, next 500 at 3 cents, next 1,200 at 2 1-2 cents and all over 2,000 at 2 cents.

Light plant receipts for 1932 were $69,898, expenses $78,504 and balance $19,901. Water plant receipts were $19,145, expenses $21,071 and balance $3,314.

The light plant furnishes free street lights, traffic lights, sewage pumping and city building lighting, the whole valued at $13,180 a year. The water plant furnishes free fire hydrant service for 140 hydrants, estimated worth $40 a year each, sewer flush tank water, and fountains, estimated at $9,750 a year. Thus both plants give what is estimated at $22,930 free service annually.

DIRECTOR IN CHARGE

The plants operate under a service director who receives $2,100 a year, a chief engineer who receives $1,800, an assistant at $1,680 and a second assistant at $1,620, fireman at $1,500 a year, a lineman at $1,740 and two meter inspectors at $1,500. The mayor gets $600 a year.

East Palestine, in Columbiana-co, with a population of 5,215, operates water and light plants, its light plant dominating the field so completely that there is no privately owned service in the city.

The light rates are 6 cents for the first 100 kw hours, 5 cents for the next 100 and the balance at 4 cents. The stove rate is 3 and 8-10th cents with a $2 a month minimum charge.

The power rate starts at 3 and 8-10th cents for the first 500, the next 1,000 at 3 cents, next 3,000 at 2 1-2 cents, next 5,000 at 2 cents, next 20,500 at 1 3-4 cents and balance at 1 1-2 cents. There is a 10 per cent discount if paid by the 10th of the month, which applies to all light bills. A deposit guarantee is required.

The water rates are 25 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 10,000 gallons per month, 15 cents per 1,000 for the next 20,000 and 10 cents per 1,000 for all additional.

Mrs. Myers and her sister, Mrs. Pearl Crago, were together when the Myers automobile skidded in loose gravel and turned on its side. The two women were uninjured and with the aid of passers-by tried to right the car. The heavy machine fell on Mrs. Myers causing her injuries.

Both the tibia and fibula below the left knee were fractured besides a simple fracture of the right ankle. She was taken to Berger hospital in the C. E. Hill ambulance.

Mrs. Crago escaped without injury.

MELL UNDERWOOD TO AID WHISLER

Congressman Mell G. Underwood, of New Lexington, has promised to do whatever he can to persuade the postal department to retract its order abandoning the Whisler post office. The office was ordered closed on July 31 with all of its patrons now being served on Kingston route 1.

The closing of the office has caused much disappointment among the patrons and also among friends of the postmaster, Simon Hamilton, who has fulfilled the duties for several years.

The office received only stamp cancellations and was operated without expense to taxpayers.

OHIO READY TO OFFER JOBS TO 125,000 MEN

45,000 Employers Prepare to Issue Call Under Blanket Codes

OFFICE IS ACTIVE

46,954 Agreements Sent By Employers

CLEVELAND, Aug. 4.—More than 45,000 Ohio employers today prepared to take almost 125,000 idle men off the streets and put them back to work.

As that gigantic work was undertaken under the blanket code of the National Recovery Act, a drive also was started against employers who signed NRA pledges, displayed the administration's Blue Eagle and then failed to adhere to their promises to shorten working hours, maintain salaries and expand employment.

A special bureau was set up at the Ohio regional headquarters of the NRA there to receive complaints of purported violations. Miss Mary E. Woods, Buckeye state director, promised drastic action in dealing with the NRA evaders.

DODGING SCARCE

Believing that instances of intentional dodging of the NRA provisions were comparatively few, Miss Woods was enthusiastic over what she termed as "the wonderful response of Ohio employers of the administration's plan."

To date she disclosed, 46,954 agreements had been received from Ohio concerns that hire more than 550,000 workers. It was estimated that approximately 125,000 jobs would be created. Pledges have been received at the rate of more than 11,000 a day.

The blanket code operations spread to many industries yesterday as the result of conferences here. Thirty of the country's leading trouser manufacturers promised to adjust working conditions to conform to the blanket code.

Hospitals, with the exception of nurses and doctors, put employees on a 40-hour week and still maintained wages. Theaters throughout the state were expected to follow the lead of chain movie houses in announcing a similar plan.

TODAY IN THE NRA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Fifty-thousand public speakers in every part of the country are enrolled as volunteers to help put over the recovery program, it was announced today. They will speak in local engagements whenever required.

In addition, 200 distinguished men and women, including senators, representatives, governors, cabinet officers and prominent business men, are enrolled for education work in conjunction with the national effort.

Hearings were scheduled for the photographic industry code.

Urging railroads of the country to spend more money upon rehabilitation, Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of railroads, today dispatched identical telegrams to the presidents of all Class I lines, declaring the recovery drive had restored jobs to more than 40,000 railroad employees since June 1. In addition, he said, the hours of employment had been increased for many who formerly worked on a restricted schedule.

At Bay City and Saginaw police reserves dispersed angry crowds gathered about grocery stores whose owners defied the voluntary closing-hour set by the grocers' group.

In Bay City the crowd stoned one store before police could interfere. In Flint threats were made to use yellow paint on offending places.

Small Business Houses Obtaining NRA Insignia

Blue Eagles Being Dispensed To Establishments of Minor Size.

GROCERS TO MEET

Honor Roll Being Prepared At Post Office.

Circleville employers—especially those with small payrolls—fell over themselves today to get on the National Recovery Act bandwagon following announcement from the post office, Thursday, that Blue Eagle insignia is available to employers, even those with less than three employees.

At first it was feared that operators of small establishments would not be able to get the Blue Eagles, thus would be censored by the purchasing public.

Orville Trone, acting postmaster, declared Friday that many smaller business houses have applied for the insignia and he is dispensing it to the applicants. The city's Honor Roll is being prepared at the post office.

Local grocers will meet this evening to discuss the program from all angles with a possibility that a code will be adopted for this city. The meeting has been called by E. S. Neuding, president of the Serve-Well group. The confab will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

T. O. Gilliland, Charles Fullen, W. F. Cellar and Alfred Lee, local lumbermen, attended a meeting of the central Ohio division of lumbermen at the Warner hotel, Chillicothe, Thursday, where the lumbermen's code, operating under the National Recovery Act, was discussed.

A final hearing on the lumbermen's code will be presented before Gen. Hugh F. Johnson August 10. About 40 lumbermen attended Thursday's meeting.

FELONY COUNT IN INDICTMENT IS DISMISSED

Former Official Now Faces Only Possibility of Misdemeanor

MILLER ON STAND

Denies Allegations of Intent to Defraud

Possibility that the case of L. E. Miller, Watt-st, former city service director, who is being tried in common pleas court before Judge J. W. Adkins on a charge of being personally interested in transactions for the city, will go to the jury early Saturday was seen Friday as testimony was completed and attorneys were preparing to make their arguments before the jury.

Mr. Miller was on the witness stand for an hour and a half Friday morning and denied that he had ever received any money on city checks paid to Harry C. Cramer, his former blacksmith. On direct examination by C. A. Leist, one of his attorneys, Mr. Miller said he was 65 years of age and had served as Circleville street commissioner from 1898-1902 and was service director from 1928 until his resignation in February of this year. He said he had an agreement with Mr. Cramer whereby he was to share equally in the profits in all work performed for the public, but was not to receive any profits in work performed for the city of Circleville.

TROUBLE CITED

Miller dismissed Cramer in August, 1932, because he had been drinking and his work was proving unsatisfactory, he said. "I also had trouble with him in settling accounts," Mr. Miller said.

In the cross-examination, Prosecutor Ray Davis reviewed the questions asked Miller by R. B. Beverly in an examination in October, 1932. "Didn't you tell Mr. Beverly that you had never signed a city check in your life, that is a city check given to Cramer?" Davis asked. "Yes, I did," replied Miller, "but at that time I didn't remember the circumstances of endorsing several checks given Cramer." Mr. Miller pointed out that he had loaned Cramer some money and had also "stood good" for groceries for Cramer at several local stores. "Cramer gave me the check for $9.25. I endorsed it and had it cashed, paid the grocery bills, took out the money that I had loaned him and then gave my own check for $2, the balance due on the city check," Mr. Miller explained.

When asked by Prosecutor Davis if the agreement between Cramer and himself was not a good one for Cramer, Mr. Miller said, "Yes."

Mr. Miller also said that he had dismissed Roy "Red" Jenkins because he had been found incapable for the work.

A surprise development of the Thursday afternoon session came shortly after court opened when Judge Adkins sustained a motion of defense attorneys to strike out the first count in the indictment because the state had failed to produce enough evidence to sustain it.

The first count charged that Mr. Miller was indirectly interested in the purchase of $6 worth of tools and implements for the city of Circleville. As the evidence introduced by the state failed to sustain this count, the jury will disregard it, and Mr. Miller will be tried on the second count.

Police Court

VAN DYKE FINED, CAIN DENIES

Marion Vanoy, of Williamsport, pleaded guilty to receiving and selling stolen wheat before Mayor B. T. Hedges, Friday, and was fined $25 and costs and committed to the county jail until fine and costs are paid, and John Cain, also of Williamsport, pleaded not guilty to breaking and entering the granary of Elmer Ater, near Williamsport, and was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond.

Vanoy and Cain were arrested by Sheriff Charles Radcliff after Mr. Ater had reported that 15 bushels and 40 pounds of wheat had been taken from his granary. Vanoy confessed that he sold the wheat at Lloyd's elevator, Williamsport, but denied that he had any part in breaking and entering the granary. Cain admitted that he took the wheat but denied that he broke a lock to enter the granary.

Ray "Shorty" Donaldson, 28, Ashville, pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing articles from the home of Mrs. Osborne, Ashville, and was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond by Mayor B. T. Hedges Thursday.

He was arrested Wednesday by Deputy Sheriff Bryan Custer.

Bulldogs Annex Fast Tilt, 4 to 3

Driving over the winning run with no one out on the last of the ninth inning, the Clark Bulldogs turned back the Circleville Oils, 4-3, in one of the best played game of the recreation ball league.

The nine inning contest required only 48 minutes of time, four doubles plays speeding up the play.

Dean and Bill Hegele divided mound chores for the winners while Paul Wallace went to the mound for the Oils in his first attempt and pitched nice ball. He was touched for 10 hits but on the brakes when the Bulldogs got tough.

The Oils scored twice in the first inning and the Bulldogs came back with two more both scored after two were out. Each team scored again to make a tie count.

CHANCE BLASTED

The tie existed for several innings then the Oils had their big chance in the eighth. Steele singled and Gehl lined a hit to right. The bases were full when Watson dropped Mettler's short fly in center. Courtwright lashed a liner toward right field but Tag Strawser at second base speared it and tossed to first a double play. With runners on second and third Wallace fanned to end the frame.

In the Bulldog half of the ninth Whacker Davis led off with a one-base smash to left. He took second on a passed ball and scored the winning run on Bunk Radcliff's two base blow to right field.

The Oils counted only six hits off Dean and Hegele. Watson and

Davis each hit safely three times for the Bulldogs.

R. Miller and J. Rooney umpired. This evening the Circleville Oils will again attempt to enter the victory column against the down-trodden Aces.

GROVE BLANKS YANKEE TEAM

Record of 308 Consecutive Games Without Row of Zeros Shattered.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Robert Moses Grove, kingpin of American league pitchers, today hewed a distinction that pitchers of seven clubs in the circuit had vainly tried to achieve for two years and a day.

By blanking the slugging Yankees yesterday, 7 to 0, the long, lean left-hander of the Athletics became the first big league hurler to shut out the New Yorkers in a nine-inning game since Cy Moore turned the trick on August 2, 1931.

The Yanks had played through 308 consecutive league contests without once failing to score at least a run, and all-time major record. The best previous record, 132 games, had been set by the Braves and Phillies in 1894, thirty-nine years ago.

Grove, who held the McCarthy men to five hits, reached his greatest heights in the eighth inning, when with the bases full, he fanned the mighty Babe Ruth for the third time and then forced Buster Lou Gehrig to lift an easy fly. In the sixth he had fanned both Ruth and Gehrig with two on base.

A typically non-partisan New York crowd cheered Grove's work to the echo. Until yesterday, he had not been particularly effective against the champs.

Jimmy Fox's 30th homer of the season featured the Mackmen's attack.

BIRDS ANNEX TWO

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—The Columbus Red Birds, fresh from a double victory over the Milwaukee Brewers in the opening game of their series here, were scheduled to meet the Brewers in a night game tonight.

In the first game yesterday, Bill Lee pitched the Birds to a 5 to 3 victory, and in the second Paul Dean was credited with a 9 to 7 win. Honors for the day went to Nick Cullip, who rapped out three consecutive home runs.

As a preliminary to the game tonight, the Columbus Cycles and Springfield Cities Service Oils will meet for state honors in the junior Legion Baseball tournament. The winner will represent Ohio in the regional tourney at Springfield on Aug. 22, and the winner there will participate in the junior world series at New Orleans.

Miller now stands trial on the second count. This charges that he was interested in the profit of services rendered for Circleville by Harry C. Cramer, Marion, his former blacksmith.

NOW IS MISDEMEANOR

The first count incurred a felony while the charge on which he is now being tried is a misdemeanor. Judge Adkins refused to sustain an objection of the defense to strike out 30 of the state's exhibits including vouchers and checks paid to Cramer. The defense claimed that these vouchers had nothing to do with the case.

Both state and defense had completed their cases with the exception of Mr. Miller's testimony, when court adjourned Thursday evening. The state completed its case Thursday morning and the testimony of State Examiner R. B. Beverly who told of his findings in examining checks and vouchers in the city auditor's office.

Nearly all of the witnesses for the defense testified that they had heard Cramer remark, "that he would get Lew Miller out of office if he had to swear to a d— lie." They included John Anderson of Nelsonville, Pearl Bush, George Brown, Albert Stevens, George Strawser, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Manbeavers, Leslie Marshall Roy Grooms, Perry Lee, Richard Taffe, Milford Lowery, F. W. Seimer, Howard Seimer and Arthur Strawser all of this city.

Other defense witnesses, Lon Starkey, James Shaw, and Charles Miller told of having worked or had business transactions with Mr. Miller.

10 ON CHARACTER

Ten character witnesses told the jury that Mr. Miller's reputation for integrity and honesty in Circleville was good. They included J. E. Wood, E. A. Brown, F. C. Clark, E. E. Wolf, Harold Ewald, E. S. Neuding, J. J. Rooney, E. C. Fricke and Col. C. E. Groce.

The case Thursday, was delayed frequently while attorneys argued various points of law. The jury of nine men and three women was dismissed five times while points of law were discussed.

Prosecutor Ray W. Davis is the state's attorney and Barton Walters and C. A. Leist are Miller's attorneys.

AID FOR CLOSED BANKS EXPECTED

Banks can receive assistance, Brunner declared by transferring mortgages to the corporation.

been calling Roosevelt "just a big Boy Scout." However, since Teagle already had been appointed, Roosevelt said nothing.

Second Guess

Teagle is not averse to basking in the floodlight of publicity. So he enjoyed his job as a Johnson adviser. That is, he did until he heard that Jimmy Moffett was to be appointed administrator of the oil industry code. Then he went to Moffett and said: "Of course you'll turn it down."

"I don't see why I should," replied Moffett. "It's a command from the President."

"In that case," said Teagle, "you'll have to resign."

So Moffett kicked his $100,000 a year job out the window and enlisted under the NRA.

Meanwhile Teagle, seeing the public reaction against him, has tried to explain, but despite this, oil circles are buzzing like a beehive about impending retirement.

In fact, the vote in the oil committee shortly after the incident shifted 27 to 6 against Teagle.

Tough Guy

The opening hearing on the steel code was a dramatic spectacle. Potent steel magnates, labor leaders, high government officials, a representative of the Soviet Union, packed the chamber.

Frances Perkins' address was a brilliant performance. Poised, fair, clear-spoken, she made a penetrating analysis of the steel industry. When she finished, the audience to a man burst into spontaneous applause. That is, everyone did except one.

LIGHT, WATER RATES

some authorities say it should be 10 per cent. Light plant taxes alone at the 22.60 mills rate for Troy would be $15,821 and the plant at the time the report was made had $193,000 bonded debt.

although there was a reserve fund of $38,545 of light plant receipts in the form of investments.

REPORTS ARE VAGUE

On the whole, however, these figures are too inconclusive to form an opinion. Some of the state examiners' reports are much more complete than others, but many of them are too vague to give a comprehensive picture.

The water works plant at Troy collected $21,694 in the Oct. 1931 to Sept. 1932, period and the examiner figured a profit of $1,413. The plant was valued at $270,000 and had a bonded debt at that time of $95,920.

The next article will give some conclusions, based on the facts and figures produced in this series.

MASS EMPLOYERS JOHNSON'S OBJECT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Efforts to bring in mass employers of labor were seen today in the efforts now being made by aides of Hugh S. Johnson to reach utility groups and other major interests not yet under code or temporary agreements on wages or hours of labor.

Liberalization of the terms of the so-called blanket agreement which is intended primarily to take the place of a more permanent code while the latter is under negotiation was one gesture aimed at the big employers.

Johnson has codes pending for the so-called "big ten" which includes the fundamental employing industries, such as electrical manufacturers, radio, automobile makers and others. He also has what he termed a lot of enthusiastic promises from lesser employers, but he is waiting to see actual results in greater employment.

SPEAKERS USED

The re-employment drive will be backed by the greatest mobilization of public speakers since world war days, including about 200 nationally known figures, besides 50,000 volunteer speakers in every section.

The laundry code promises an added $35,000,000 to its annual payroll, and is in effect pending final adoption. A code for zinc mining interests, and one for meat packers, representing all branches of the industry, and one for the motor bus lines of the country, were among those announced.

The meat packing code is expected to be completed for hearing within a day or two. Reports continued to pour in all day from local points, of hundreds of presidential agreements being signed by small businesses of town and city.

The stretch-out committee, appointed by Johnson to study this industrial development under which mill workers are given extra mechanical duties, has reported. It recommends appointment of a board within the textile industry to assist in control of this practice.

LANCASTER SCHOOL CHIEF AT ROTARY

"Out of calamity we get progress," said Prof. C. H. Griffey, superintendent of the Lancaster schools when speaking before the Rotary club Thursday on "Some Aspects of Our New Social Order."

Referring to history to prove this statement he used as an example the progress made after the great Roman empire was destroyed by barbarians. He continued by saying that the depression that the world has been passing through may be considered the greatest calamity the world has ever experienced but believed that some of the most radical and progressive movements will come from it.

"We never hope to see the same conditions that existed before March 4th," he continued, "and the ideas and movements that are being tried will help solve these problems."

He reviewed the conditions that have been responsible for the depression and gave some ideas that may be put into effect to eliminate its repetition.

He closed his talk by saying that the new idea is a planned social order to make the benefits for the group and not for the few.

I've Often Wondered

By PAT J. KIRWIN

WHY the Procter and Gamble Co. of Cincinnati called a soap that floats, IVORY?

The other day I asked H. C. Brutton, an official of the company, to clear up the question and he kindly acquiesced with an interesting explanation. He says that Mr. James N. Gamble, late vice-president and director of the company, and a son of James Gamble, one of the original founders, offers the following account of the origin of Ivory soap.

"It seems that the first intention was to make a soap of pure vegetable oils resembling Castile soap. The firm bought the rights to such a soap from a group of men who were doing very little business and desired to sell the formula. They proceeded according to the formula, and obtained a white soap."

"The soap had no distinctive name at first and was merely called 'White Soap.' The members of the firm recognized the fact that it should have a distinctive name and that the term, 'White Soap' would not be satisfactory as it was not necessarily exclusive. They had several meetings to discuss the matter. One Sunday when Mr. Harley Procter was attending services in the Episcopal church, Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati, the passage which occurs in the 8th verse of the 45th psalm was read: 'All thy garments smell of myrrh and aloes and cassia out of the IVORY palaces whereby they have made thee glad.' Immediately the thought flashed through his mind: 'There is the name!'

He called the members of the firm together and the name 'Ivory' was adopted and registered in Washington. The first cake of Ivory soap was sold in October, 1879."

WAR AGAINST GANGSTERS IN REAL EARNEST

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Police chiefs of the nation were assured today that the federal government is in "deadly earnest" in its new war on gangsters, kidnapers and criminals.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant to the Attorney General of the United States in charge of the campaign against the underworld, outlined the vigorous anti-crime war at the closing meeting of the police chiefs' convention here.

No attempt will be made to substitute federal for local law enforcement, Keenan stated, but the government will adhere to the following lines of action:

"First, to enforce vigorously and relentlessly the federal laws, with particular emphasis on suppression of the crimes of kidnaping and other forms of threat and violent."

"Second, to attempt in a lawful and sound manner to lend itself as a co-ordinating and co-operative law enforcement agency in all communities. There seems to be a particular need for this."

NEED SUGGESTIONS

Continuing, the federal official explained:

"In this respect, every intelligent suggestion will be welcomed and all the aids that science and human intelligence can provide will be sought and adopted to the end that the traitorous army of gangsters may be met with every resource at our command."

Keenan pointed to the naming of Prof. Raymond Moley to lead the government's war on criminals as evidence of President Roosevelt's deep concern over the gangster problem.

"Just as the present administration, under the inspired leadership of our president, has courageously faced the serious economic and social problems it will move in every lawful manner to exterminate that group of people who seem to have decided that they can prey on the helpless public and earn their livelihood, even to the point of luxurious existence, through these methods."

"That our president is deadly in earnest can be no better exemplified than by his action in granting the request of Attorney General Cummings in drafting the services of Prof. Moley, who has been a deep student of these problems for many years."

Chesterfields are as good as Science and Money can make them

Every pound of Domestic tobacco used in Chesterfield cigarettes is aged for thirty months—2½ years. Science knows there is no other way to make cigarette tobaccos mild and mellow.

Every process used in the manufacture of Chesterfield cigarettes is modern, scientific and clean—visitors are always impressed with the cleanliness of the Chesterfield factories.

Every ingredient, including the paper, is pure—nothing that you eat or drink is tested more carefully.

And Chesterfields are made right; the right length, the right diameter, and filled right—a detail perhaps, but if a cigarette is "to satisfy" it must be made right.

Everything about Chesterfield is as good as money can buy or Science knows about—you have our word for this.

And Chesterfields are milder and taste better—this much you can prove for yourself.

Duty of the States

MUCH of the present agitation for greater federal efforts in combating crime overlooks the important fact that the federal government's powers in this connection are limited. Except where federal laws are violated, the crime problem in the United States remains one for the states and local communities to handle.

Joseph B. Keenan, special assistant to Attorney General Cummings and director of the federal government's anti-racketeering campaign, took occasion the other day to state that there is no intention of usurping the law enforcement functions of states and local communities.

"The federal government," he said, "has the privilege and duty of enforcing its own laws, so it must be realized that the design of the department of justice at this time does not include any plan to attempt generally to preserve the peace in each community included in every one of the 48 states of the union." He declared it "does not intend to usurp the authority of others, nor in any manner to relieve local authorities of their privilege and obligation of enforcing various laws of the several states."

He declared the present need is for some central body to aid local authorities in an orderly manner in meeting the crime problem. But, he warned, "The problem of devising a plan whereby the federal government can best perform this function is a serious one and, naturally, requires a substantial amount of study."

This observation is one with which there should be general agreement. The federal government already has injected itself deeply into the affairs of the states at many points. For it to take upon itself local law enforcement duties would be another serious inroad.

Yet, many states are finding it impossible to curb crime of various forms. Already it has become necessary for the federal government to take a hand in kidnappings through the new law which gives it authority to do this where the abduction victim is taken by his captors from one state into another. Unless the states and local communities improve their methods of enforcement, the federal government may have to go further in this direction in behalf of national welfare.

This should be avoided if possible. It is the duty of the states to use their utmost efforts in strengthening their law enforcement machinery by admitting their lawlessness and calling on the federal government for assistance.

Wheat and Wine

THE probability of early repeal of the eighteenth amendment has brought up in Washington discussion a possible way for finding increased markets for the United States' surplus wheat. Officials are reported to be considering negotiation of trade agreements with wine-producing countries on the basis of modifying duties on foreign wines in return for similar treatment of American wheat.

France supplies an illustration of how agreements of this kind might work out with mutually beneficial results. The French duty on wheat now is $1.20 per kilo and there is in effect a decree that no foreign wheat may be used in bread-making. The result of these restrictions is that the French market virtually is closed to American wheat.

Should the eighteenth amendment be repealed and no changes be made in the present laws fixing duties on wines, the rates would be $6 a gallon on champagne and $1.25 on all still wines up to those of 24 per cent of alcoholic content. Wines of higher alcoholic content are classified as spirits, on which a duty of $5 a gallon would prevail.

The United States has no extensive wine-making industry. French wines, therefore, would come into little conflict with a domestic product. By lowering the duties to more reasonable levels in return for corresponding cuts in the French duty on wheat, the United States would be increasing the market for its grain. France is reported to be sympathetic toward such a proposal. Similar arrangements with other wine-producing countries, such as Italy, Germany, Greece and Spain would mean a still greater benefit.

The suggestion is one that has a practical side which deserves to receive careful study. The time between now and ratification of the repeal amendment might be profitably devoted to a study of the matter.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XLI

"I've got to go back to work, and Mark Nesbit would pay me more than anybody else, Jean," she added. "Kim's left me."

"Again? What was the matter with him this time?"

Mary Faith shrugged. "Too many parties and too many pals, I suppose. Don't worry about me, Jean. You know how Kim is. . . . He'll come to his senses after a while, and everything will be all right."

"That's what you always say," Jean remarked tartly. "I don't see how you can go on believing in him, Mary Faith, when he treats you the way he does. . . . Why don't you leave him for good? Why don't you come out to Arizona and make some kind of a new life for yourself?"

"No, I haven't any money to take me and the baby to Arizona. I haven't any money at all, Jean. . . . Look here, will you speak to Mr. Nesbit in the morning? Ask him if he'll consider me for your place, and explain how things are with me? I suppose I ought to have too much pride to go back to work for him, but all I'm thinking of now is the baby. I've got to bring him up decently."

At noon the next day Jean telephoned her.

"I've just told Mr. Nesbit that I'm leaving, and I've told him that you'd like to come back," she said. "You know the company never employs married women, don't you?—So I had to explain to him that you're separated from Kim, and he suggested that you drop in to see him on Monday morning."

Mary Faith stood beside the telephone for a long time after she had hung up the receiver. Something that her mother had said to her years and years before came back to her now and seemed to echo through the quiet little rooms of the flat.

"I never really worry about things, Mary Faith," she had said. "The Lord never closes one door without opening another."

Until now Mary Faith had never fully understood what she meant by that. She meant, of course, that there was always a way out of trouble if only you had faith—faith that you would find it.

And, as it proved her words, here was the way back to Nesbit's opening before her just when every other way in life was closed to her. When Kim had left her, refusing to support her. When her mother-in-law had gone, leaving Mary Faith to face the problem of finding work and caring for the baby at the same time.

"Now it's all settled," she thought as she stood there in the dim little hall beside the telephone. With her salary at Nesbit's she could live at Mrs. Puckett's and hire a nursemaid to look after the baby during the day. It would be hard sledding to do it on thirty-seven dollars a week, but it could be done—

On Monday morning Mary Faith took the baby to Mrs. Puckett's and left him there for two hours while she went downtown to see Mark Nesbit.

There was a tight feeling in her throat as she went up the narrow staircase of the old building. She remembered how many times, years before, she had run eagerly down them to meet Kim waiting for her in the street below, debonair and smiling and good to look at, slouched behind the driving wheel of his little open car. . . . How many noons she had sat at her desk upstairs, embroidering guest towels and tablecloths while she listened to Jean lecture on the evils of long engagements. . . .

How lovely life had been then, and how much lovelier it had promised to be!

"Well, it was lovely part of the time," she told herself. "I've been happier at times than some women ever are, no matter how long they live."

She went on up the stairs saying to herself a bit of sentimental poetry that she had read in one of her father's books, a novel called "Aladdin O'Brien":

"Give me three breaths of pleasure After three deaths of pain—"

Her life with Kim had been like that. Long periods of pain when he left her, and then the joy of taking him back and knowing that he was wholly hers for months at a time. She stood at the top of the iron stairs for two or three minutes to get her breath and to screw up her courage.

"Jean Bartlett says that you'll consider giving me back my old position here, Mr. Nesbit," said Mary Faith.

It was going to take all of her courage to open the door of the office and step into it. To face Miss Saxe and Miss Kelly and Mark Nesbit—the people who knew all about her and who would know now that she had come back to them defeated, asking for a job.

The familiar sounds of the place came to her ears as she stood there, like music heard long ago when her life was younger and happier. . . . The clicking of typewriters, the sound of Miss Kelly's voice, the sudden sharp ringing of a telephone.

She turned the handle of the door and stepped inside. Everything seemed to be just about as it always had been. Green-shaded lights above golden-oak desks, shiny cork floor, high narrow windows that looked out toward the west.

Miss Saxe leaned over her typewriter, her fingers flying, her eyes bent on a shorthand pad beside her. . . . Miss Gilday read a book, propped up before her on the switchboard, as she worked. . . . A new office boy, who looked enough like Stanley Odeskalki to be his brother, was getting a drink at the water cooler in the corner. Even the water cooler was the same dark blue one that had always stood in that corner.

The boy turned away from the cooler and saw her. "I'm Mrs. Farrell. I have an appointment with Mr. Nesbit," she said to him, stopping beside Miss Saxe's desk to shake hands with her.

"I'll tell Mr. Nesbit that she's here, Leonard," Miss Kelly sang out to the boy, and she said something into the telephone before she got down from her perch to greet Mary Faith.

"Well, if it isn't grand to see you! And looking so well, too!" The sweet, slightly nauseating smell of peanut brittle rose to Mary Faith's nostrils as she put her arms around her. "I just told Mr. Nesbit that you're here. He says to step right into his room."

Feeling perfectly calm and collected, Mary Faith walked across the shiny cork floor and opened the door of Mark Nesbit's private office.

She came in slowly and said, "How do you do, Mr. Nesbit" in a brisk business-like way and sat down beside his desk, like a person preoccupied with grave business. Her whole mind was on that business—the serious business of getting this position he was offering and as much salary as possible along with it. For the moment she forgot that he was the man who had wanted to marry her three years before.

"Jean Bartlett says that you'll consider giving me back my old position here, Mr. Nesbit," she clasped her hands on the edge of the desk and looked at him anxiously.

He smiled at her. "You're not worrying about it, are you?" he asked. "You know you can have it. It's yours. The only questions we have to settle are about your salary and how soon you can start to work."

He leaned back in his chair and studied her with his deep attentive eyes. And under his steady gaze Mary Faith began to feel painfully conscious of a mended place in her white imitation chamois gloves and of her last year's hat that turned down in front when all of the new hats turned back from the face.

"How would it suit you if I started work next Monday?" she asked, taking her hands from the edge of the big flat-topped desk. "There are some things that I have to do this week. You see, I'm breaking up housekeeping and going back to my old boarding house with my baby—and I'll have to find someone who'll look after him days while I'm here—Would you want to start me off at my old salary?"

"I'd thought of thirty-seven dollars a week. That's a cut above your old salary, isn't it?—And next Monday will do." He got up from his desk. The interview was over.

Mary Faith stood up and held out her hand. "That's fine, thirty-seven a week," she murmured. "I hadn't expected a cent more than what I used to earn. Thanks very much, Mr. Nesbit. And good-bye."

He took her hand but without any eagerness. He was all business just as he had been always during the first three or four years she had worked for him. Well, that was as it should be.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THESE here landlords must be tough birds. All the abuse they get, and they still do business at the same stands, and in the same way too, I reckon.

There was a landlord that had the misfortune to have his tenant's doors made of green lumber, and so the doors shrunk a good deal. The tenant complained for six months, and the landlord gave him the stock answer. Said he'd fix 'em right away. So one day the tenant wrote the landlord a letter and said:

"I've been complaining about how the mice and rats was running under the doors in our house, but now I got something more serious to report, and I hope you'll do something about it quick. One of our cats, chasing a rat, got caught under the dining room door and squeezed near to death before we heard him yowling and got him out. It ain't fair to the cats to fix doors so the rats can scoot under them and the cats is barred out. Send a man to jack up our doors about an inch, and give the cats a chance."

LETTERS TO EDITOR

A PROPOSITION IN THE ROUGH

Editor Herald:

The Power Company no doubt is profitable to furnish electricity to users of Electric Refrigerators, at their rate of 4c per KWH per month for 50 KWH, for all purposes, provided the consumer uses an Electric Refrigerator. Therefore the consumers of 50 KWH pay only $2.00 per month while the neighbor, living in next house, who cannot afford Electric Refrigerator, pays 9c per KWH, or $4.50 per month, or 125 per cent more than his more fortunate neighbor.

Question: If 1,000 different families here will install an Electric Refrigerator, all in September, 1933, will the S. O. E. Company renew its rate schedule of 4c per KWH for first 50 KWH, with the Ohio Utilities Commission of Ohio, for a term of not less than 10 years? If so why do not 50 or less enterprising citizens of Circleville, form a Company? The object of this company will be to contract with manufacturers for 1,000 more or less, of Electric Refrigerators at around $50.00 each for the size that retails at $89.00. It would mean a big advertisement for several manufacturers to place 1,000 refrigerators in our city, within a space of 10 days. They sure would be glad to do so and charge less if any, to advertising. All those customers using 50 KWH or more, would pay $4.50 per month for 18 months, to the Circleville Company furnishing the 1,000 Refrigerators. $2.50 per month, or $30.00 per year, is the saving between 4c and 9c per KWH and the other $2.00 is the saving on ice they would not need to buy.

The excess, above the cost to manufacturer, would be for interest on the $50,000.00 investment, for collecting and managing this scheme for eighteen months. Each family in the 1,000 would immediately, after installation of the refrigerator, benefit by the 4c rate. The saving between 4c and 9c, together with the saving in ice bills, pays for the Electric Refrigerator. This is from savings, altogether in ice bills and electric bills, also securing an electric refrigerator at about one half price. Such a plan would be hard on the Ice Man and the dealer in electric refrigerators, but a saving of $50,000.00 to the 1,000 consumers at 4c per KWH.

It would be the quickest way to reduce 50 KWH rate from 9c to 4c per KWH. Such a deal can be called self-liquidating. Why will not such a deal work?

PROPOSITION.

This era is also doing something for the forgotten manners. Are shifts for the shiftless included in the industrial code?

He'll Be A Judge Next

By IRVIN S. COBB

THERE is a well-known custom prevailing in our courts, especially on the criminal sides, of assigning counsel to such prisoners as have no one to defend them. On one occasion, the court finding a man accused of theft, and without counsel, said to a young lawyer who was present and whom we will call Jones, "Mr. Jones, please to withdraw with the prisoner, confer with him and then give him such counsel as may be for his best interest."

The lawyer and his client then withdrew; and in fifteen or twenty minutes the lawyer returned into court.

"Where is the prisoner?" asked the Court.

"He has gone, your honor," said the hopeful legal limb.

"Your Honor told me to give him the best advice I could for his interest; and as he said he was guilty, I thought the best counsel I could offer him was to cut and run, which he took at once."

MAYO CHILDREN GUARDED FROM ABDUCTION PLOT

ROCHESTER, Minn., Aug. 4.—Special precautions were taken today to guard the estate of Dr. Charles H. Mayo, world famous surgeon, after a supposed attempt to kidnap his grandchildren was balked by a nurse.

"Shoot first and make explanations afterwards," Dr. Mayo advised servants and neighbors. Three children of the surgeon's son, Dr. Charles W. Mayo, were sleeping in the nursery when Miss Marie Langseth, the nurse, was awakened by a man who carefully turned the knob of a door leading to the room. The door was locked.

Frightened by the nurse's shout, the man fled to a waiting automobile and was driven away, Miss Langseth reported.

SETTLE READY TO SEEK MARK

Daring Man To Take Balloon Into Stratosphere Before Midnight.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Lieut. Commander T. W. G. Settle announced definitely today that he will soar into the stratosphere tonight.

Early today conditions were propitious for the flight that will defy death and foreboding mysteries of nature. Commander Settle has completed one of the most careful weather maps he has ever drawn.

Rising alone and surrounded by a maze of instruments, the young naval officer who is to pilot the biggest balloon ever built from Soldier field shortly before midnight, will present an awe-inspiring spectacle. What he will find or where he will come down nobody can tell.

Assuring himself of the possibility of the flight early this morning, Commander Settle said good-night to his aides and hid out for a long sleep. He will get no more sleep until the flight is ended.

Planning the most spectacular solo flight in the history of ballooning, Commander Settle aims to smash all records for altitude in addition to carefully recording the mysteries of cosmic and ultra violet rays. His aides said he may contribute a wealth of valuable information to science.

Local Motorists Warned of 'Trap'

Mounted Officer Patrols South Columbus; Several Have Been Caught.

Warning is being issued today to residents of this city and county of the existence of a speed trap in south Columbus in which several local residents have been caught in the past week or two.

One story is being told by a local man who saw a motorcycle policeman following him and purposely drove his car at 40 miles an hour while another driver from out of the state followed at the same pace. After a while the officer drove past the local car and ordered the driver to stop.

The local man was ordered to drive to 1867 Lockbourne-rd in east Columbus to the court of Clint D. Doughty, justice of the peace, and the out-of-the-state man was ordered to drive there, also. After considerable squabble the local man posted $25 bond to be bound over to the grand jury and the out-of-the-state man paid $5 to the justice.

Several other complaints have been received concerning the 'trap' with the Columbus Automobile club and the office of Sheriff Ross D. Anderson of Franklin-co expected to be notified.

According to the local man the officer charged him with driving 65 miles an hour which allegation was false.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Britain Reported Ready to Let Pound Drop Along With Dollar

WASHINGTON—The next big development in international exchange looks like a falling off of the pound sterling.

The Treasury is in receipt of confidential information indicating that the British are getting ready to pull the plug on the pound and let it slide. Of course, it won't be done at the fell swoop. That would be disastrous. But the Treasury's advice is that the British have definitely decided to cut loose from the French franc, to which the pound has been tied for some months now.

The reason given for this change in British fiscal policy is President Roosevelt's inflationary program. Word from London has it that Chancellor Chamberlain is no longer seeing eye to eye with Montagu Norman, deflationist-minded Governor of the Bank of England, on the desirability of keeping the pound pegged at a high level.

For a long time Chamberlain was convinced that Roosevelt intended stabilizing the dollar, that France and England co-operating in international exchange could force the U. S. to do so. Events in the final weeks of the World Economic Conference, however, disillusioned the British Treasury head.

While dismissals and slashed pay scales are the rule in the rest of the federal services, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, under Chairman "Seaboard Bill" Stevenson, seems to be an exception. . . . A few weeks ago A. E. Hutchinson, former $3,600-a-year congressional secretary of Stevenson, now secretary to the Board, had his salary jumped from $6,000 to $8,500. . . . James O. Mann, 21-year-old stenographer, was shown to have jumped in a period of several months from a $1,600-a-year clerkship to $5,000 a year as assistant to Hutchinson. . . . An interesting sidelight on Jimmy's meteoric rise is that he is a protégé of Alabama's Representative McDuffie, author of the Economy Act under which hundreds of government employees lost their jobs and the rest had their pay reduced.

BETTING odds among oil men crowding Washington are that the mighty Standard Oil Company of New Jersey soon will have a new President. It looks as if John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is going to do to President Walter C. Teagle what he did four years ago to Robert W. Stewart, who was ousted from Standard Oil of Indiana.

Teagle's row with the NRA and Jimmy Moffett, his vice-president, originated before November 8, when Teagle wanted to put little yellow slips in the pay checks of Standard Oil employees warning them to vote for Herbert Hoover. Moffett, a Democrat—in fact the only Democrat on the board of Standard Oil—opposed this, finally won his fight.

Later General Johnson appointed Teagle on the advisory board of the NRA. The appointment came through Barney Baruch, a friend of Teagle's, but it did not meet with the approval of F. D. R. The President knew Teagle was a stand-pat Republican, a brother-in-law of Ambassador Walter E. Edge, New Jersey G. O. P. boss, senator, and Hoover intimate. He knew also that Teagle was one of those who before election had

Systems Vary in Many Cities; Muny Plants at East Palestine and St. Mary's Seem to Be Losing

BY HENRY C. HAGLOCH.

St. Mary's, Auglaize-co, maintains municipal light and water plants but a privately owned power company also operates in the town which has a population of 5,395.

Water charges are a minimum of $2.25 to $16 per quarter, according to size of meter, on a rate of $2.25 per 1000 cubic feet.

Light rates are 7 cents first 300 kw, next 200 at 6, next 300 at 5, next 200 at 4, all over 1,000 at 2 1-2 cents. The minimum charge is 50 cents. There is a meter rental of 20 cents a month for small meters and 25 cents for large ones. Stove and small power rate is 4 cents.

Larger power rates start at 4 cents for the first 300, next 500 at 3 cents, next 1,200 at 2 1-2 cents and all over 2,000 at 2 cents.

Light plant receipts for 1932 were $69,898, expenses $78,504 and balance $19,901. Water plant receipts were $19,145, expenses $21,071 and balance $3,314.

The light plant furnishes free street lights, traffic lights, sewage pumping and city building lighting, the whole valued at $13,180 a year. The water plant furnishes free fire hydrant service for 140 hydrants, estimated worth $40 a year each, sewer flush tank water, and fountains, estimated at $9,750 a year. Thus both plants give what is estimated at $22,930 free service annually.

DIRECTOR IN CHARGE

The plants operate under a service director who receives $2,100 a year, a chief engineer who receives $1,800, an assistant at $1,680 and a second assistant at $1,620, fireman at $1,500 a year, a lineman at $1,740 and two meter inspectors at $1,500. The mayor gets $600 a year.

East Palestine, in Columbiana-co, with a population of 5,215, operates water and light plants, its light plant dominating the field so completely that there is no privately owned service in the city.

The light rates are 6 cents for the first 100 kw hours, 5 cents for the next 100 and the balance at 4 cents. The stove rate is $3 and 8-10th cents with a $2 a month minimum charge.

The power rate starts at 3 and 8-10th cents for the first 500, the next 1,000 at 3 cents, next 3,000 at 2 1-2 cents, next 5,000 at 2 cents, next 20,500 at 1 3-4 cents and balance at 1 1-2 cents. There is a 10 per cent discount if paid by the 10th of the month, which applies to all light bills. A deposit guarantee is required.

The water rates are 25 cents per 1,000 gallons for the first 10,000 gallons per month, 15 cents per 1,000 for the next 20,000 and 10 cents per 1,000 for all additional.

In 1931 the water receipts were $16,655 and the expenditures $20,701. The light plant receipts were $66,310 and the expenditures $67,410, showing both plants running in the red for the year. The city's total debt was $196,687 of which $29,000 was on the water plant and $8,000 on the light plant.

A $15,000 light plant depreciation fund was established in 1930 and $700 a month has been added out of light plant receipts since that time.

Mrs. Sadie Myers, 29, wife of Noah Myers, E. Main-st. restaurant owner, suffered fractures of her left leg and right ankle Thursday afternoon in an accident south of Williamsport on the Chillicothe highway.

Mrs. Myers and her sister, Mrs. Pearl Crago, were together when the Myers automobile skidded in loose gravel and turned on its side. The two women were uninjured and with the aid of passers-by tried to right the car. The heavy machine fell on Mrs. Myers causing her injuries.

Both the tibia and fibula below the left knee were fractured besides a simple fracture of the right ankle. She was taken to Berger hospital in the C. E. Hill ambulance.

Mrs. Crago escaped without injury.

MELL UNDERWOOD TO AID WHISLER

Congressman Mel C. Underwood of New Lexington has promised to do whatever he can to persuade the postal department to retract its order abandoning the Whisler post office. The office was ordered closed on July 31 with all of its patrons now being served on Kingston route 1.

The closing of the office has caused much disappointment among the patrons and also among friends of the postmaster, Simon Hamilton, who has fulfilled the duties for several years since cancellations and was operated without expense to taxpayers.

HOSPITAL NEWS

Mrs. Albert Marshall, R. F. D. 5, underwent a major operation at Berger hospital Thursday afternoon. Her condition is reported good.

Durbin, who is prominent and active in Democratic political circles, was convicted a year ago. His case was appealed, however, and the new trial granted.

OHIO READY TO OFFER JOBS TO 125,000 MEN

45,000 Employers Prepare to Issue Call Under Blanket Codes

OFFICE IS ACTIVE

46,954 Agreements Sent By Employers

CLEVELAND, Aug. 4.—More than 45,000 Ohio employers today prepared to take almost 125,000 idle men off the streets and put them back to work.

As that gigantic work was undertaken under the blanket code of the National Recovery Act, a drive also was started against employers who signed NRA pledges, displayed the administration's Blue Eagle and then failed to adhere to their promises to shorten working hours, maintain salaries and expand employment.

A special bureau was set up at the Ohio regional headquarters of the NRA here to receive complaints of purported violations. Miss Mary E. Woods, Buckeye state director, promised drastic action in dealing with the NRA evaders.

DODGING SCARCE

Believing that instances of intentional dodging of the NRA provisions were comparatively few, Miss Woods was enthusiastic over what she termed as "the wonderful response of Ohio employers of the administration's plan."

She disclosed, 46,954 agreements had been received from Ohio concerns that hire more than 550,000 workers. It was estimated that approximately 125,000 jobs would be created. Pledges have been received at the rate of more than 11,000 a day.

The blanket code operations spread to many industries yesterday as the result of conferences here. Thirty of the country's leading trouser manufacturers promised to adjust working conditions to conform to the blanket code.

Hospitals, with the exception of nurses and doctors, put employees on a 40-hour week and still maintained wages. Theaters throughout the state were expected to follow the lead of chain movie houses in announcing a similar plan.

TODAY IN THE NRA

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Fifty-thousand public speakers in every part of the country are enrolled as volunteers to help put over the recovery program. It was announced today. They will speak in local engagements whenever required.

In addition, 200 distinguished men and women, including senators, representatives, governors, cabinet officers and prominent business men, are enrolled for education work in conjunction with the national effort.

Hearings were scheduled for the photographic industry code.

Urging railroads of the country to spend more money upon rehabilitation, Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator of railroads, today dispatched identical telegrams to the presidents of all Class I lines, declaring the recovery drive had restored jobs to more than 40,000 railroad employees since June 1. In addition, he said, the hours of employment had been increased for many who formerly worked on a restricted schedule.

At Bay City and Saginaw police reserves dispersed angry crowds gathered about grocery stores whose owners defied the voluntary closing-hour set by the grocers' group.

In Bay City the crowd stoned one store before police could interfere. In Flint threats were made to use yellow paint on offending places.

GROCERS TO MEET

Honor Roll Being Prepared At Post Office.

Circleville employers—especially those with small payrolls—fell over themselves today to get on the National Recovery Act bandwagon following announcement from the post office, Thursday, that Blue Eagle insignia is available to employers, even those with less than three employees.

At first it was feared that operators of small establishments would not be able to get the Blue Eagles, thus would be censored by the purchasing public.

Orville Trone, acting postmaster, declared Friday that many smaller business houses have applied for the insignia and he is dispensing it to the applicants. The city's Honor Roll is being prepared at the post office.

Local grocers will meet this evening to discuss the program from all angles with a possibility that a code will be adopted for this city. The meeting has been called by E. S. Neuding, president of the Serve-Well group. The confab will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

Possibility that the case of L. W. Miller, Watt-st, former city of Circleville director, who is being taken to common pleas court before Judge J. W. Mr. Miller was on the stand for an hour and a half, Thursday morning and denied that he had ever received any money from the city checks paid to him by Cramer, his former business partner. Bulldogs Annex Fast Tilt, 4 to 3

Over the winning run for one out on the last of the inning, the Clark Bulldogs back the Circleville Oils, 4-3, one of the best played game in recreation ball league.

The nine inning contest required 48 minutes of time, four minutes speeding up the play.

Dean and Bill Hegele divided ground chores for the winners while Paul Wallace went to the mound for the Oils in his first attempt and pitched nice ball. He was touched for 10 hits but on the bases when the Bulldogs got fourth.

The Oils scored twice in the first inning and the Bulldogs came back with two more both scored after two were out. Each team scored again to make a tie count.

CHANCE BLASTED
The tie existed for several innings then the Oils had their big chance in the eighth. Steele singled and Geib lined a hit to right. The bases were full when Watson dropped Mettler's short fly in center. Courtwright lashed a liner toward right field but Tag Strawser at second base speared it and tossed to first a double play.

With runners on second and third Wallace fanned to end the frame. In the Bulldog half of the ninth Whacker Davis led off with a one-base smash to left. He took second on a passed ball and scored the winning run on Bunk Radcliff's two base blow to right field.

The Oils counted only six hits off Dean and Hegele. Watson and

Davis each hit safely three times for the Bulldogs.

R. Miller and J. Rooney umpired. This evening the Circleville Oils will again attempt to enter the victory column against the down-trodden Aces.

FELONY COUNT IN INDICTMENT IS DISMISSED

Miller now stands trial on the second count. This charges that he was interested in the profit of services rendered for Circleville by Harry C. Cramer, Marion, his former blacksmith.

NOW IS MISDEMEANOR

The first count incurred a felony while the charge on which he is now being tried is a misdemeanor. Judge Adkins refused to sustain an objection of the defense to strike out 30 of the state's exhibits including vouchers and checks paid to Cramer. The defense claimed that these vouchers had nothing to do with the case.

Both state and defense had completed their cases with the exception of Mr. Miller's testimony, when court adjourned Thursday evening.

Thursday morning the testimony of State Examiner R. B. Beverly who told of his findings in examining checks and vouchers in the city auditor's office.

Nearly all of the witnesses for the defense testified that they had heard Cramer remark, "that he would get Lew Miller out of office if he had to swear to a d— lie."

They included John Anderson of Nelsonville, Pearl Bush, George Brown, Albert Stevens, George Strawser, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Manbeavers, Leslie Marshall, Roy Grooms, Perry Lee, Richard Taffe, Milford Lowery, F. W. Seimer, Howard Seimer and Arthur Strawser all of this city.

Other defense witnesses: Lon Starkey, James Shaw, and Charles Miller told of having worked or had business transactions with Mr. Miller.

10 ON CHARACTER

Ten character witnesses told the jury that Mr. Miller's reputation for integrity and honesty in Circleville was good. They included J. B. Wood, E. A. Brown, F. C. Clark, E. E. Wolf, Harold Ewald, E. S. Neuding, J. J. Rooney, E. C. Friece and Col. C. E. Groce.

The case Thursday, was delayed frequently while attorneys argued various points of law. The jury of nine men and three women was dismissed five times while points of law were discussed.

Prosecutor Ray W. Davis is the state's attorney and Barton Walters and C. A. Leist are Miller's attorneys.

been calling Roosevelt "just a big Boy Scout."

However, since Teagle already had been appointed, Roosevelt said nothing.

Second Guess

Teagle is not averse to basking in the spotlight of publicity. So he enjoyed his job as a Johnson adviser. That is, he did until he heard that Jimmy Moffett was to be appointed administrator of the oil industry code. Then he went to Moffett and said: "Of course you'll turn it down."

"I don't see why I should," replied Moffett. "It's a command from the President."

"In that case," said Teagle, "you'll have to resign."

So Moffett kicked his $100,000 a year job out the window and enlisted under the NRA.

Meanwhile Teagle, seeing the public reaction against him, has tried to explain, but despite this, oil circles are buzzing like a beehive about impending retirement. In fact, the vote in the oil committee shortly after the incident shifted 27 to 6 against Teagle.

Tough Guy

The opening hearing on the steel case was a dramatic spectacle. Potent steel magnates, labor leaders, high government officials, a representative of the Soviet Union, packed the chamber.

Frances Perkins' address was a brilliant performance. Poised, fair, clear-spoken, she made a penetrating analysis of the steel industry. When she finished, the audience to a man burst into spontaneous applause. That is, everyone did except one.

The exception was "Puddler Jim" Davis, one-time predecessor of Miss Perkins, now United States Senator from Pennsylvania facing trial on a federal indictment for having violated the lottery laws. Squat, fleshy, glowering from a front row seat, Davis kept his arms folded over his bulging middle.

Merry-Go-Round

Prince Nicholas of Rumania called off his airplane inspection trip to the United States because French airplane manufacturers were afraid he might buy some. France, through military loans to Rumania, controls the arms policy of that country. Although this Administration has given women more consideration than any other in history, their leaders are dissatisfied. One of their demands is increased representation in the Little Cabinet.

some authorities say it should be 10 per cent. Light plant taxes alone at the 22.60 mills rate for Troy would be $15,821 and the plant at the time the report was made had $193,000 bonded debt.

Ikkes, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, former regent of the University of Chicago, is now serving her third term in the Illinois State Legislature. Ikkes, it better than Washington. Secretary Ikkes is fond of flowers. Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Ikkes and Mrs. Pinchot. All are ladies who dare do anything. Asked the other day whether he had approved any changes in the blank code, Roosevelt replied: "No, but I signed the pajama code."

although there was a reserve fund of $38,545 of light plant receipts in the form of investments.

REPORTS ARE VAGUE
On the whole, however, these figures are too inconclusive to form an opinion. Some of the state examiners' reports are much more complete than others, but many of them are too vague to give a comprehensive picture.

The water works plant at Troy collected $21,694 in the Oct. 1931, to Sept. 1932, period and the examiner figured a profit of $1,413. The plant was valued at $270,000 and had a bonded debt at that time of $95,920.

The next article will give some conclusions, based on the facts and figures produced in this series.

GROVE BLANKS YANKEE TEAM

Record of 308 Consecutive Games Without Row of Zeros Shattered.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Robert Moses Grove, kingpin of American league pitchers, today hewed a distinction that pitchers of seven clubs in the circuit had vainly tried to achieve for two years and a day.

By blanking the slugging Yankees yesterday, 7 to 0, the long, lean left-hander of the Athletics became the first big league hurler to shut out the New Yorkers in a nine-inning game since Cy Moore turned the trick on August 2, 1931.

The Yanks had played through 308 consecutive league contests without once failing to score at least a run, and all-time major record. The best previous record, 132 games, had been set by the Braves and Phillies in 1894, thirty-nine years ago.

Grove, who held the McCarthy men to five hits, reached his greatest heights in the eighth inning, when with the bases full, he fanned the mighty Babe Ruth for the third time and then forced Buster Lou Gehrig to lift an easy fly. In the sixth he had fanned both Ruth and Gehrig with two on base. A typically non-partisan New York crowd cheered Grove's work to the echo. Until yesterday, he had not been particularly effective against the champs.

Jimmy Fox's 30th homer of the season featured the Mackmen's attack.

Daily Drama

By International News Service
The hero—Lefty Grove, Athletics, became first pitcher to blank Yankees in 309 games by shutting out champions, 7 to 0.

The goats—Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, Yankees, each failed to hit twice with runners on base.

Despite an increased number of cows this year over last, total milk production is now about the same as last year.

MASS EMPLOYERS JOHNSON'S OBJECT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Efforts to bring in mass employers of labor were seen today in the efforts now being made by aides of Hugh S. Johnson to reach utility groups and other major interests not yet under code or temporary agreements on wages or hours of labor.

Liberalization of the terms of the so-called blanket agreement which is intended primarily to take the place of a more permanent code while the latter is under negotiation was one gesture aimed at the big employers.

Johnson has codes pending for the so-called "big ten" which includes the fundamental employing industries such as electrical manufacturers, radio, automobile makers and others. He also has what he termed a lot of enthusiastic premises from lesser employers, but he is waiting to see actual results in greater employment.

SPEAKERS USED

The re-employment drive will be backed by the greatest mobilization of public speakers since world war days, including about 200 nationally known figures, besides 50,000 volunteer speakers in every section.

The laundry code promises an added $35,000,000 to its annual payroll, and is in effect pending final adoption. A code for zinc mining interests, and one for meat packers, representing all branches of the industry, and one for the motor bus lines of the country, were among those announced.

The meat packing code is expected to be completed for hearing within a day or two. Reports continued to pour in all day from local points, of hundreds of presidential agreements being signed by small businesses of town and city.

The stretch-out committee, appointed by Johnson to study this industrial development under which mill workers are given extra mechanical duties, has reported. It recommends appointment of a board within the textile industry to assist in control of this practice.

"Out of calamity we get progress," said Prof. C. H. Griffey, superintendent of the Lancaster schools when speaking before the Rotary club Thursday on "Some Aspects of Our New Social Order."

Referring to history to prove this statement he used as an example the progress made after the great Roman empire was destroyed by barbarians. He continued by saying that the depression that the world has been passing through may be considered the greatest calamity the world has ever experienced but believed that some of the most radical and progressive movements will come from it.

"We never hope to see the same conditions that existed before March 4th," he continued, "and the ideas and movements that are being tried will help solve these problems." He reviewed the conditions that have been responsible for the depression and gave some ideas that may be put into effect to eliminate its repetition. He closed his talk by saying that the new idea is a planned social order to make the benefits for the group and not for the few.

WHY the Procter and Gamble Co. of Cincinnati called a soap that floats, IVORY?

The other day I asked H. C. Brutton, an official of the company, to clear up the question and he kindly acquiesced with an interesting explanation. He says that Mr. James N. Gamble, late vice-president and director of the company, and a son of James Gamble, one of the original founders, offers the following account of the origin of Ivory soap.

"It seems that the first intention was to make a soap of pure vegetable oils resembling Castile soap. The firm bought the rights to such a soap from a group of men who were doing very little business and desired to sell the formula. They proceeded according to the formula, and obtained a white soap."

"The soap had no distinctive name at first and was merely called 'White Soap.' The members of the firm recognized the fact that it should have a distinctive name and that the term, 'White Soap' would not be satisfactory as it was not necessarily exclusive. They had several meetings to discuss the matter. One Sunday when Mr. Harry Procter was attending services in the Episcopal church, Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati, the passage which occurs in the 8th verse of the 45th psalm was read: 'All thy garments smell of myrrh and aloe and cassia out of the IVORY palaces whereby they have made thee glad.' Immediately the thought flashed through his mind: 'There is the name!'

He called the members of the firm together and the name 'Ivory' was adopted and registered in Washington. The first cake of Ivory soap was sold in October, 1879."

WAR AGAINST GANGSTERS IN REAL EARNST

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Police chiefs of the nation were assured today that the federal government is in "deadly earnest" in its new war on gangsters, kidnapers and criminals.

Joseph E. Keenan, assistant to the Attorney General of the United States in charge of the campaign against the underworld, outlined the vigorous anti-crime war at the closing meeting of the police chiefs' convention here.

No attempt will be made to substitute federal for local law enforcement, Keenan stated, but the government will adhere to the following lines of action: "First, to enforce vigorously and relentlessly the federal laws, with particular emphasis on suppression of the crimes of kidnapping and other forms of threat and violence. "Second, to attempt in a lawful and sound manner to lead itself as a coordinating and co-operative law enforcement agency in all communities. There seems to be a particular need for this."

NEED SUGGESTIONS

Continuing, the federal official explained: "In this respect, every intelligent suggestion will be welcomed and all the aids that science and human intelligence can provide will be sought and adopted to the end that the traitorous army of gangsters may be met with every resource at our command."

Keenan pointed to the naming of Prof. Raymond Moley to lead the government's war on criminals as evidence of President Roosevelt's deep concern over the gangster problem.

"Just as the present administration, under the inspired leadership of our president, has courageously faced the serious economic and social problems it will move in every lawful manner to exterminate that group of people who seem to have decided that they can prey on the helpless public and earn their livelihood, even to the point of luxurious existence, through these methods. "That our president is deadly in earnest can be no better exemplified than by his action in granting the request of Attorney General Cummings in drafting the services of Prof. Moley, who has been a deep student of these problems for many years."

Chesterfields are as good as Science and Money can make them

Every pound of Domestic tobacco used in Chesterfield cigarettes is aged for thirty months—2½ years. Science knows there is no other way to make cigarette tobaccos mild and mellow.

Every process used in the manufacture of Chesterfield cigarettes is modern, scientific and clean—visitors are always impressed with the cleanliness of the Chesterfield factories.

Every ingredient, including the paper, is pure—nothing that you eat or drink is tested more carefully.

And Chesterfields are made right; the right length, the right diameter, and filled right—a detail perhaps, but if a cigarette is "to satisfy" it must be made right.

Everything about Chesterfield is as good as money can buy or Science knows about—you have our word for this.

And Chesterfields are milder and taste better—this much you can prove for yourself.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XXI

"I've got to go back to work, and Mark Nesbit would pay me more than anybody else, Jean," she added. "Kim's left me."

"Again? What was the matter with him this time?"

Mary Faith shrugged. "Too many parties and too many pals, I suppose. Don't worry about me, Jean. You know how Kim is. He'll come to his senses after a while, and everything will be all right."

"That's what you always say," Jean remarked tartly. "I don't see how you can go on believing in him, Mary Faith, when he treats you the way he does. . . . Why don't you leave him for good? Why don't you come out to Arizona and make some kind of a new life for yourself?"

"No, I haven't any money to take me and the baby to Arizona. I haven't any money at all, Jean. . . . Look here, will you speak to Mr. Nesbit in the morning? Ask him if he'll consider me for your place, and explain how things are with me? I suppose I ought to have too much pride to go back to work for him, but all I'm thinking of now is the baby. I've got to bring him up decently."

At noon the next day Jean telephoned her.

"I've just told Mr. Nesbit that I'm leaving, and I've told him that you'd like to come back," she said. "You know the company never employs married women, don't you?—So I had to explain to him that you're separated from Kim, and he suggested that you drop in to see him on Monday morning."

Mary Faith stood beside the telephone for a long time after she had hung up the receiver. Something that her mother had said to her years and years before came back to her now and seemed to echo through the quiet little rooms of the flat.

"I never really worry about things, Mary Faith," she had said. "The Lord never closes one door without opening another."

Until now Mary Faith had never fully understood what she meant by that. She meant, of course, that there was always a way out of trouble if only you had faith—faith that you would find it.

And, as if to prove her words, here was the way back to Nesbit's opening before her just when every other way in life was closed to her. When Kim had left her, refusing to support her. When her mother-in-law had gone, leaving Mary Faith to face the problem of finding work and caring for the baby at the same time.

"Now it's all settled," she thought as she stood there in the dim little hall beside the telephone. With her salary at Nesbit's she could live at Mrs. Puckett's and hire a nursemaid to look after the baby during the day. It would be hard sledding to do it on thirty-seven dollars a week, but it could be done—

On Monday morning Mary Faith took the baby to Mrs. Puckett's and left him there for two hours while she went downtown to see Mark Nesbit.

There was a tight feeling in her throat as she went up the narrow staircase of the old building. She remembered how many times, years before, she had run eagerly down them to meet Kim waiting for her in the street below, debonair and smiling and good to look at, slouching behind the driving wheel of his little open car. . . . How many noons she had sat at her desk upstairs, embroidering guest towels and tablecloths while she listened to Jean lecture on the evils of long engagements. . . . How lovely life had been then, and how much lovelier it had promised to be!

"Well, it was lovely part of the time," she told herself. "I've been happier at times than some women ever are, no matter how long they live."

She went on up the stairs saying to herself a bit of sentimental poetry that she had read in one of her father's books, a novel called "Aladdin O'Brien".

"Give me three breaths of pleasure After three deaths of pain—"

Her life with Kim had been like that. Long periods of pain when he left her, and then the joy of taking him back and knowing that he was wholly hers for months at a time.

"Jean Bartlett says that you'll consider giving me back my old position here, Mr. Nesbit," said Mary Faith.

She stood at the top of the iron stairs for two or three minutes to get her breath and to screw up her courage.

It was going to take all of her courage to open the door of the office and step into it. To face Miss Saxe and Miss Kelly and Mark Nesbit—the people who knew all about her and who would know now that she had come back to them defeated, asking for a job.

The familiar sounds of the place came to her ears as she stood there, like music heard long ago when her life was younger and happier. . . .

The clicking of typewriters, the sound of Miss Kelly's voice, the sudden sharp ringing of a telephone. She turned the handle of the door and stepped inside. Everything seemed to be just about as it always had been. Green-shaded lights above golden-oak desks, shiny cork floor, high narrow windows that looked out toward the west.

Miss Saxe leaned over her typewriter, her fingers flying, her eyes bent on a shorthand pad beside her. . . . Miss Gilday read a book, propped up before her on the switchboard, as she worked. . . . A new office boy, who looked enough like Stanley Odeskalki to be his brother, was getting a drink at the water cooler in the corner. Even the water cooler was the same dark blue one that had always stood in that corner.

The boy turned away from the cooler and saw her.

"I'm Mrs. Farrell. I have an appointment with Mr. Nesbit," she said to him, stopping beside Miss Saxe's desk to shake hands with her.

"I'll tell Mr. Nesbit that she's here, Leonard," Miss Kelly sang out to the boy, and she said something into the telephone before she got down from her perch to greet Mary Faith.

"Well, if it isn't grand to see you! And looking so well, too!" The sweet, slightly nauseating smell of peanut brittle rose to Mary Faith's nostrils as she put her arms around her. "I just told Mr. Nesbit that you're here. He says to step right into his room."

Feeling perfectly calm and collected, Mary Faith walked across the shiny cork floor and opened the door of Mark Nesbit's private office.

She came in slowly and said, "How do you do, Mr. Nesbit?" in a brisk business-like way and sat down beside his desk, like a person preoccupied with grave business. Her whole mind was on that business—the serious business of getting this position he was offering and as much salary as possible along with it. For the moment she forgot that he was the man who had wanted to marry her three years before.

"Jean Bartlett says that you'll consider giving me back my old position here, Mr. Nesbit," she clasped her hands on the edge of the desk and looked at him anxiously.

He smiled at her.

"You're not worrying about it, are you?" he asked. "You know you can have it. It's yours. The only questions we have to settle are about your salary and how soon you can start to work."

He leaned back in his chair and studied her with his deep attentive eyes. And under his steady gaze Mary Faith began to feel painfully conscious of a mended place in her white imitation chamois gloves and of her last year's hat that turned down in front when all of the new hats turned back from the face.

"How would it suit you if I started work next Monday?" she asked, taking her hands from the edge of the big flat-topped desk. "There are some things that I have to do this week. You see, I'm breaking up housekeeping and going back to my old boarding house with my baby—and I'll have to find someone who'll look after him days while I'm here—"

"Would you want to start me off at my old salary?"

"I'd thought of thirty-seven dollars a week. That's a cut above your old salary, isn't it?—And next Monday will do." He got up from his desk. The interview was over.

Mary Faith stood up and held out her hand. "That's fine, thirty-seven a week," she murmured. "I hadn't expected a cent more than what I used to earn. Thanks very much, Mr. Nesbit. And good-bye."

He took her hand but without any eagerness. He was all business just as he had been always during the first three or four years she had worked for him. Well, that was as it should be.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THESE here landlords must be tough birds. All the abuse they get, and they still do business at the same stands, and in the same way too, I reckon.

There was a landlord that had the misfortune to have his tenant's doors made of green lumber, and so the doors shrunk a good deal. The tenant complained for six months, and the landlord gave him the stock answer. Said he'd fix 'em right away. So one day the tenant wrote the landlord a letter and said:

"I've been complaining about how the mice and rats was running up and down our house, but now I got something more serious to report, and I hope you'll do something about it quick. One of our cats, chasing a rat, got caught under the dining room door and squeezed near to death before we heard him yowling and got him out. It ain't fair to the cats to fix doors so the rats can scoot under. So the cats is barred out. Send a man to jack up our doors about an inch, and give the cats a chance."

LETTERS TO EDITOR

A PROPOSITION IN THE ROUGH

Editor Herald:

The Power Company no doubt is profitable to furnish electricity to users of Electric Refrigerators, at their rate of 4c per KWH per month for 50 KWH, for all purposes, provided the consumer uses an Electric Refrigerator. Therefore the consumers of 50 KWH pay only $2.00 per month while the neighbor, living in next house, who cannot afford Electric Refrigerator, pays 9c per KWH, or $4.50 per month, or 125 per cent more than his more fortunate neighbor.

Question: If 1,000 different families here will install an Electric Refrigerator, all in September, 1933, will the S. O. E. Company waive its rate schedule of 4c per KWH for first 50 KWH, with the Ohio Utilities Commission of Ohio, for a term of not less than 10 years? If so why do not 50 or less enterprising citizens of Circleville, form a Company? The object of this company will be to contract with manufacturers for 1,000 more or less, of Electric Refrigerators at around $50.00 each for the size that retails at $89.00. It would mean a big advertisement for several manufacturers to place 1,000 refrigerators in our city, within a space of 10 days. They sure would be glad to do so and charge loss if any, to advertising. All those customers using 50 KWH or more, would pay $4.50 per month for 18 months, to the Circleville Company furnishing the 1,000 Refrigerators. $2.50 per month, or $30.00 per year, is the saving between 4c and 9c per KWH and the other $2.00 is the saving on ice they would not need to buy.

The excess, above the cost to manufacturer, would be for interest on the $50,000.00 investment, for collecting and managing this scheme for eighteen months. Each family in the 1,000 would immediately, after installation of the refrigerator, benefit by the 4c rate. The saving between 4c and 9c, together with the saving in ice bills, pays for the Electric Refrigerator. This is from savings, altogether in ice bills and electric bills, also securing an electric refrigerator at about one half price. Such a plan would be hard on the Ice Man and the dealer in electric refrigerators, but a saving of $50,000.00 to the 1,000 consumers at 4c per KWH.

It would be the quickest way to reduce 50 KWH rate from 9c to 4c per KWH. Such a deal can be called self-liquidating. Why will not such a deal work?

PROPOSITION.

This era is also doing something for the forgotten manners. Are shifts for the shiftless included in the industrial code?

He'll Be A Judge Next

By IRVIN S. COBB

THERE is a well-known custom prevailing in our courts, especially on the criminal sides, of assigning counsel to suit prisoners as have no one to defend them. On one occasion, the court finding a man accused of theft, and without counsel, said to a young lawyer who was present and whom we will call Jones, "Mr. Jones, please to withdraw with the prisoner, confer with him and then give him such counsel as may be for his best interest."

The lawyer and his client then withdrew; and in fifteen or twenty minutes the lawyer returned into court.

"Where is the prisoner?" asked the Court.

"He has gone, your honor," said the hopeful legal limb.

"Your Honor told me to give him the best advice I could for his interest; and as he said he was guilty, I thought the best counsel I could offer him was to cut and run, which he took at once."

MAYO CHILDREN GUARDED FROM ABDUCTION PLOT

ROCHESTER, Minn., Aug. 4.—Special precautions were taken today to guard the estate of Dr. Charles H. Mayo, world famous surgeon, after a supposed attempt to kidnap his grandchildren was balked by a nurse.

"Shoot first and make explanations afterwards," Dr. Mayo advised servants and neighbors.

Three children of the surgeon's son, Dr. Charles W. Mayo, were sleeping in the nursery when Miss Marie Langseth, the nurse, was awakened by a man who carefully turned the knob of a door leading to the room. The door was locked.

Frightened by the nurse's shout, the man fled to a waiting automobile and was driven away, Miss Langseth reported.

SETTLE READY TO SEEK MARK

Daring Man To Take Balloon
Into Stratosphere Before Midnight.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Lieut. Commander T. W. G. Settle announced definitely today that he will soar into the stratosphere tonight.

Early today conditions were propitious for the flight that will defy death and foreboding mysteries of nature. Commander Settle has completed one of the most careful weather maps he has ever drawn.

Rising alone and surrounded by a maze of instruments, the young naval officer who is to pilot the biggest balloon ever built from Soldier field shortly before midnight, will present an awe-inspiring spectacle. What he will find or where he will come down nobody can tell.

Assuring himself of the possibility of the flight early this morning, Commander Settle said good-night to his aides and hid out for a long sleep. He will get no more sleep until the flight is ended.

Planning the most spectacular solo flight in the history of ballooning, Commander Settle aims to smash all records for altitude in addition to carefully reading the mysteries of cosmic and ultra-violet rays. His aides said he may contribute a wealth of valuable information to science.

Local Motorists Warned of 'Trap'

Mounted Officer Patrols South
Columbus; Several Have Been Caught.

Warning is being issued today to residents of this city and county of the existence of a speed trap in south Columbus in which several local residents have been caught in the past week or two.

One story is being told by a local man who saw a motorcycle policeman following him and purposely drove his car at 40 miles an hour while another driver from out of the state followed at the same pace. After a while the officer drove past the local car and ordered the driver to stop.

The local man was ordered to drive to 1867 Lockbourne-rd in east Columbus to the court of Clint D. Doughty, justice of the peace, and the out-of-the-state man was ordered to drive there, also.

After considerable squabble the local man posted $25 bond to be bond over to the grand jury and the out-of-the-state man paid $5 to the justice.

Several other complaints have been received concerning the 'trap' with the Columbus Automobile club and the office of Sheriff Ross D. Anderson of Franklin-co expected to be notified.

According to the local man the officer charged him with driving 65 miles an hour which allegation was false.
